ITALIAN MURDERER CAUGHT IN ITALY

Man Who Killed Dragone Under Arrest at Cancellolo.

Giuseppe Esposito, the young Italian who on Feb. 26 shot and instantly killed Sabatino Dragone, near Port Lee, is under arrest at Cancellolo, Italy, his former home, charged with murder. From what Prosecutor Koester of Hackensack has learned Esposito believed that no one knew who shot Dragone, for he was sure that he had also killed Frank Magnetto, who was with Dragone at the time of the shooting. The murder was committed on a lonely road near Port Lee. Magnetto did fall from the baker wagon, but it was from fright and not because he was wounded. It was because of this belief that Esposito returned to his home in Cancellolo, where he and Dragone had been playmates.

Prosecutor Koester requested the Italian newspapers in New York to print the details of the murder, with the note that the papers in Italy copy. Dragone's relatives watched every steamer that reached Italy from the United States, and were all prepared to act when the murderer arrived.

Prosecutor Koester says he doesn't believe he can have Esposito extradited, because the accused is not a citizen of the United States, but it is probable that the murderer will be placed on trial in Italy on evidence taken before the Italian vice-consul in New York and sent to the Italian government.

A BUNCH OF ORDINARY DRUNKS.

A Penitent Husband Headed List at Sunday Session of Police Court.

James McGlade was a penitent man when arraigned in the recorder's court on Saturday morning. He had been on a protracted spree and while intoxicated had driven his wife and children from their home, 208 Paterson street. Mrs. McGlade entered a complaint and on Saturday afternoon Warrant Officer Sautter sent the accused to the lockup. The man was sobered up at the time of his arraignment and as he had a position to go to, was permitted to go on his way after being warned that a second offence would mean a jail term. James Murray, old and sadly in need of a bath, was found lying on the sidewalk at the corner of Pearl and Straight streets by Reserve Officer Perry at 8:0 o'clock on Saturday evening. Some said Murray had fallen and injured himself but Perry was able to diagnose the case as one of plain drunk. The old man went up for ten days. Dennis Savage was found on Erie railroad property, between the depot and Cedar street Saturday evening and was held as a suspicious character by Detective McCoy. In court Savage said he meant no harm and had sentence suspended.

TRAP SHOOTING.

Joe Spaeth Shot Well at the Northsides' Shoot on Saturday.

Joe Spaeth was the star performer at the weekly clay target shoot of the Northside Rod and Gun club at Columbus Heights on Saturday afternoon. The day was an ideal one for the sport and all hands made good scores. The scores:

The Jackson Park Gun club will hold a shoot on its grounds near Little Falls next Saturday.

CHIEF PAROLED HER.

Mrs Reider Was Arrested for Shoplifting in Boston Store.

Mrs. Fannie Reider was arrested for shoplifting at the Boston store Saturday afternoon, but was not arraigned in the police court yesterday morning. After she had been locked up a short time her husband called at headquarters and at his request Chief Bimson paroled the accused until this morning.

It is charged that Mrs. Reider pulled eight pairs of stockings from a counter in the main aisle of the store and was in the act of placing them in a wide and deep bag when caught by A. R. Whitcomb, a floorwalker. She was turned over to Warrant Officer Sautter.

Change of Air.

"Rain," says The Scotsman, "has been in the ascendant in this district since quite an early hour." One is certainly a little tired of the commonplace expression, "Isn't the rain coming down?" and The Scotsman does well to strike out a new line.—Punch.

JACOBS HAD DEAR SPREE

Woke Up to Find Watch and Chain, Rings and Money Missing—Acted Strangely.

When Otto Jacobs woke up in a cell at the police station yesterday morning he found that he was minus a gold watch and chain and two gold rings. He knew he had been intoxicated the night before and that was about all he could recollect.

Reserve Officer Perry left headquarters to investigate a case at midnight on Saturday. As Perry reached Ellison and Washington street a man, hatless, rounded the corner with a crowd following him up. The crowd said it was a case for Perry to look into and the officer watched the man.

Jacobs, as he afterwards gave his name, walked into the vacant lots adjoining the police station and Perry found him lying on the ground. The man acted as if bereft of his reason, but there were strong fumes of liquor and Jacobs was locked up.

In the police court the prisoner said he came from Little Falls on Saturday morning and imbibed freely. He did not know where he had been and could not give the slightest idea of where he lost his jewelry. Judge Noonburg decided that the man had been sufficiently punished and let him go.

SOME CIRCUS FACTS.

Interesting Things About the Barnum & Bailey Show Not Generally Known.

There are some facts about the Barnum & Bailey circus that are not generally known, but which can hardly fail to be of interest to the thousands who visit the big show when it exhibits here Wednesday, May 2.

The present season marks the fifty-third annual tour of the Barnum & Bailey show. It is the only American circus that has ever made a tour of Europe, and its entire equipment, except railroad cars, which were built in England, has twice been transported across the Atlantic. Among its other prosperous tours was a visit to Australia.

The show represents an actual investment of $4,000,000. Its daily expenses average $7,000. Many small cities, which must be played in order to break the railroad jumps, represent an actual money loss owing to the insufficiency of the population; nevertheless the show is an assured money-maker and its annual profits run into the hundreds of thousands.

THE KAISER'S FAMILY AT PLAY.

Unconventional Doings of Imperial Princes When in the Country.

The German emperor and his family spend their summer vacation in the castle of Wilhelmshohe, near Cassel. As described by a writer in Harper's Bazar, it is really a vacation. Here is seen the domestic side of the royal picture which appeals so strongly to the German. The empress is not alone the first lady of the land—she is the first mother in the land.

The aristocracy may grumble that she neglects her social duties and cultivates too closely the famous three K's recommended by the emperor—Kirche, Kinder und Küche (church, children and cooking)—but it is precisely because of this that the bulk of the German nation have enshrined her in their hearts.

As spring changes to summer and the date set for the empress' arrival draws near there toll up the wooded slopes of Wilhelmshohe vans of gigantic size, depositing furniture, provisions and trunks at the Schloss, which opens wide its windows to the morning sunlight.

In the grounds an army of peasant women in blue cotton gowns and white handkerchiefs, rake and hoe, prune and plant, till the flower beds grow fairly riotous with blossom.

Carrriages and vehicles galore and all sorts and conditions of horses come one by one to the stables, and at the entrance to the wooded bridle path, which we regarded as our own special property, a polite notice was posted that it was "for the very most highest personages reserved."

Several years ago, when the crown prince was still a boy, we used to have glimpses of the mother playing tennis on the lawn with her two eldest sons and a lady in waiting; or of the whole party sitting round the supper table on the terrace of a warm summer evening. Indeed, the princess seemed to be omnipresent, and every one had a different tale to tell of them.

One morning as the artillery was coming in from its daily Dienst, the crown prince, with his legs apart and his hands in his pockets, was standing at the entrance to the barracks, watching the long train of guns and horses file by.

His tutor reproved the boy for his attitude with the remark: "The crown prince never stands in that position!" "Oh, bother crown princes!" came the rejoinder.

That this small Hohenzollern was a chip of the old block, however, is evidenced by the story that in his play with his brother, the handsome Eitel Fritz, the latter in some way displeased the elder, who attempted to pummel him, saying: "I'll teach you who is crown prince."

On his return that evening the emperor was told of the occurrence, and calling the heir to the throne before him, made him tell his version of the story.

"Quite right," said the emperor, when the boy had finished: "and now I shall teach you who is emperor!" whereupon he administered a severe rebuke to the crown prince.

The relations between parents and children, however, are of the tenderest; and during the few weeks that the emperor spends at Wilhelmshohe every moment that he can spare from affairs of state is devoted to his family. The princes, in their blue and white
